The Flatiron District is where Broadway and 5th Avenue intersect.

Here you'll find some of the best restaurants in New York City and cuisines from all over the world, including the Jue Lan Club,

ABC Kitchen, Gramercy Tavern and La Pecora Bianca, where you can enjoy a delicious glass of wine

And, of course, there's Eataly, an Italian food superstore where you can find anything from great cheeses to prosciutto to some delicious espresso.

And what about shopping?

Well, in this neighborhood you'll find everything you're looking for.

One of my favorite places in town is Union Square Park, and one of the best parts is the Green Market.

You can find some of the freshest organic fruits and vegetables from farms all around the region here.

Another wonderful spot is Madison Square Park, where you can just relax, read a book, or even brave the lines at the original Shake Shack for that amazing burger.

Steps away you will find Chelsea, the Gallery District, and the High Line, where you can enjoy amazing views of the city and the Hudson River.

That was just a small taste of what this area has to offer.

So, explore and enjoy!
